An act of justice was performed by Congress and the President in enacting legislation to save the thousands of good soldiers who would have been summarily dropped from the service under the terms of the non-citizen provision in the Army Appropriation bill. Now, thanks to prompt action, all will be given adequate opportunity to complete their citizenship requirements and remain in their chosen career.

The C. M. T. C. movement which has been of such great value to the youth of the nation and potentially to National Defense will be extended to Navy training under the provisions of the administration bill sent to Congress on its closing day. Doubtless this will be law in time to carry out its provisions in 1939.

Col. William Bryden, FA, will give up the caissons, which he has so long "kept rollin'" in song and field, next Wednesday when he becomes a brigadier general and assumes command of the 16th Brigade at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. Because of General Bryden's knowledge of the pay problem and his experience with the Interdepartmental Pay Board of 1929, his presence so near to Washington will be valuable if that subject comes up for study next year.

Assignment of Rear Adm. Clark H. Woodward, USN, to command of the Third Naval District at New York brings to that post an officer with wide and varied experience on naval and diplomatic missions. He is one of the few naval officers ever to have held the rank of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, in which capacity he served as personal representative of President Hoover in Nicaragua.

Col. John H. Sherman is proud of his 251st Coast Artillery (AA) which supplied the anti-aircraft defense during the exercises at San Luis Obispo. And the Guard organization, in turn, is looking forward to more large scale maneuvers with the other components of the Army of the United States.

Col. Julian L. Schley, CE, is not too busy with the post and Engineer School at Ft. Belvoir, Va., to take on the work and responsibility of membership on the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. His experience and ability make him a valuable addition to this important agency.

General Malin Craig and the associates with whom Lt. Col. C. H. Danielson, AGD, has worked, joined in extending best wishes to him this week when he relinquished his duties as aide to the Chief of Staff, preparatory to entering the War College as a student. His cooperation and helpfulness won him many friends during his duty in Washington.

Greetings to the Journal on its 74th Birthday

The Hon. Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of War—"The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on its Seventy-fourth birthday continues to devote itself to those high principles of public service upon which it was founded nearly three-quarters of a century ago. Army and Navy officers and enlisted men have been its readers for generations and have always considered it as a dependable friend and guide. I extend my felicitations on its anniversary and trust it will continue its splendid contributions to many future generations of Service personnel."

The Hon. Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy—"On the occasion of the 74th birthday of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL it is my privilege and pleasure to express appreciation, on behalf of the Navy and the Naval Service, for the fine spirit of cooperation that has animated its publishers and staff, and for its contributions toward acquainting the American public with the needs, missions and responsibilities for our Navy."

General Malin Craig, Chief of Staff, United States Army—"Its consistent support of National Defense and its steadfast interest in the welfare of the personnel of the Armed Services has earned for the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL a high place in the Army's affectionate regard. The Service greets its seventy-fourth anniversary with congratulations and extends its wishes for continued success and future prosperity."

Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Major General Commandant, United States Marine Corps—"The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has established throughout its nearly three-quarters of a century history an enviable reputation for the efficient dissemination of naval information to marines throughout the world. The United States Marine Corps extends greetings and congratulations to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL upon the occasion of its seventy-fourth anniversary."

Rear Adm. R. R. Waesche, Commandant, United States Coast Guard—"It is indeed a happy privilege to extend congratulations and best wishes to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on the occasion of the 74th Anniversary of its founding. Much credit is due the editors and staff of this splendid paper for their untiring efforts in maintaining a reliable source of Service news over so long a period. Ours is a sincere hope that it may prosper in future years and continue to enjoy its enviable record of successful publication."

Navy-Marine Corps Promotion

As the members of Congress interested in a reform of the promotion system in the Navy and Marine Corps were leaving Washington this week following adjournment, there seemed to be a growing belief that upon the reconvening of Congress the Navy Department will be prepared either to submit new personnel legislation or to suggest changes in the measure now before the House.

Rear Adm. Adolphus Andrews, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, has repeatedly told Congressional committees that the personnel situation and the selection problem are subjects of continuing study in his Bureau. That this continuing study will result in further conclusions and perhaps a better solution than the one already advanced seemed more than likely to those who have been following the subject.

Furthermore, it is no secret that the bill now before the House Naval Affairs Committee was not the final conclusions of the Navy Department. Until the time when the Naval Affairs Committee began hearings on the Ditter Resolution for a "selection holiday" there had been no disposition on the part of the Department

Reenlist Non-Citizens

With the approval by the President of the bill permitting non-citizens to reenlist in the Army, as reported in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last week, the War Department is now sending letters to corps area and department commanders advising them of policy under new law.

The letter follows:

"Act of Congress approved August 19, 1937 provides as follows: 'That notwithstanding the language contained in the second proviso on page six of the act of July 1, 1937 (Public Number 176, 75th Congress first session) or any other act, during the three year period following the enactment of this act, enlisted personnel of the Army who have legally declared their intention to become citizens, or who do so during their current enlistment, or who have been discharged from the Army since July 1, 1937, and who also agree to complete expeditiously their naturalization and become citizens of the United States may be reenlisted and receive the pay to which, except for the aforesaid proviso, they would otherwise be legally entitled: provided, That Filipinos who were serving in the Army on July 1, 1937, may be reenlisted without regard to their

Defense Needs Share Attention of Congress

The first session of the 75th Congress, which adjourned last Saturday, showed a distinct trend in its membership to consider and act upon the needs of the forces of National Defense.

While some important projects were not enacted into law, the record of action set by the session and the evident disposition to give thought and study to service problems, bids fair that the next session, whether it be special or regular, will carry forward to enactment much of the legislation needed to strengthen the Nation's armed preparedness and the welfare of its personnel.

In the matter of funds for carrying forward current activities, the Congress continued its previous year's policy of reasonable appropriations. More than six hundred millions were appropriated for the War Department (including non-military activities) and about 588 millions were provided for the Navy (including funds carried over from the previous fiscal year).

Some needed legislation failed of passage, but even in those cases the progress made is not wasted for it will not die and can be taken up at the next session. Notable in this category is promotion reform for the Navy and Marine Corps. After considerable reluctance on the part of the Navy Department and the Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, a bill, drawn by the Department at the instance of the Committee, was introduced but no action was taken on it. However, sentiment was so aroused in both Houses of Congress that there seems but little doubt that the next session will see a determined effort to draft and enact new personnel legislation.

There was, too, notable interest shown in the pay problem. A number of measures looking toward increases in pay for officers and enlisted men, active and retired, were introduced but no definite progress made. Both Departments evidenced as much interest in the subject as the current demands for budget balancing would permit and a number of legislators showed willingness to work for improvement. Among those taking an active interest in the subject were Representatives Phillips, Scott, Boland, Robinson and Costello. This, too, can be expected to be the subject of activity at the next session.

The Coast Guard's bill for changing its promotion system came close to enactment and will quite likely be passed at the next session. It already has been approved by the Senate and is on the House calendar.

Congress enacted a number of bills for the Army, many of which while not of outstanding importance were needed for the smooth functioning of the organization. Bills for the relief of disbursing officers, transfers of parcels of land, clearing of titles, etc., were placed on the statute books. Army Day was recognized as an established feature. Extra pay for enlisted men serving as reporters was approved. The measure

Bombing of USS Augusta Prominent on the Nation's Editorial Pages

The bombing of the light cruiser Augusta as she lay in the Whangpoo river off Shanghai supervising the evacuation of American nationals from that war-desolate city, was the subject of considerable comment by the editors of the nation's newspapers.

The New York Journal and American says: "Our position in China becomes acute, now that our own dead and wounded are among the victims of the battle of Shanghai.

"The American cruiser Augusta, in Shanghai solely on a peaceful and friendly mission, is hit by an anti-aircraft shell, one of her crew killed, 18 injured.

"That brings our labors to maintain a neutral position to a crisis. We will be fortunate if other and worse incidents of this kind do not follow. Such things as neutrality and safety are fictions in a city one-fourth ablaze, the air filled with bombing planes and bursting shells.

"It is going to take a lot of calm thinking in Washington to keep us from getting seriously hurt in China."

"The Augusta had an absolute right to be where she was, and the United States had and has a right to expect the nations engaged in warfare at that particular point would take extraordinary precautions to avoid endangering American ships or the lives of American citizens," declares the Greenville, S. C. News. "The Augusta was there along with other American vessels to protect and aid in the evacuation of American citizens from the International settlement, where they live under the protection of the American flag by reason of an understanding with the Chinese, which is recognized by Japan.

"China and Japan, pursuing a ferocious, yet undeclared war, have apparently lost sight of the obligations which they owe to neutrals who are lawfully and by right, and with very proper purpose in the area."

The Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal comments, "There is no reason to get excited over the obviously accidental bombing of the Augusta. The Flagship of the Asiatic fleet is engaged in the highly hazardous undertaking of supervising the evacuation of American nationals from the war gripped city. In the line of fire of both sides, and also from the air, its position is anything but safe, its mission of mercy being fraught with danger.

"The insistence by the United States on the unrestricted use of the Whangpoo and the Yangtze, Shanghai's outlet to the sea, is far more serious than the accident that happened to the Augusta. Japan and China have both indicated that they would restrict the use of the waterway. The United States has declared its unyielding opposition to any obstacle to the speediest possible evacuation of more than 2,000 Americans still remaining in the war-torn city. The work of rescue will go forward despite the risks and the obstacles involved. That is the nation's one concern."

"The horrors of the undeclared war between China and Japan are brought closer to the United States by the dropping of a shell on the Augusta," says the Washington, D. C., Times. "Following only a few days after the killing of several American citizens, the incident naturally stirs resentment. The question is, how far shall we allow this national resentment to carry us?"

"Owing to the manner in which the Japanese-China conflict is being carried on, there is every likelihood that before the cessation of hostilities, or before the evacuation is completed, other Americans will be killed.

"Neither government nor public opinion can afford to be stampeded into action which would be subsequently regretted. That does not mean that we will take the coward's place in international affairs, that we will permit other nations to kill our citizens and trample on our rights with impunity.

"But it does mean that we will pursue a course of enlightened intelligence in protecting our people and in maintaining their rights."

The Hartford, Conn., Courant writes: "The calm displayed by the President in the face of the accidental dropping of a bomb, presumably Japanese in origin, on the deck of the Augusta, is exemplary. Doubtless the President profoundly regrets the incident, but he manifestly does not intend to protest it in such a manner as might lead, in the end, to the sacrifice of still more lives. Although the matter is left in the hands of the Commander in Chief of the Asiatic Squadron, who has proceeded in the correct manner with protests and investigations, the civilian government is the controlling interest and it manifestly will not hotly demand reprisals.

"Unlike the head of another nation, when a similar incident occurred during the continuing strife in Spain, the President will not order the fleet to shell an undefended coast town in order to satisfy national pride."

The Detroit, Mich., News says: "The sailor killed by an anti-aircraft shell on the deck of the Augusta gave his life in the one cause for which the sacrifice of human lives is always tolerable. He died that others might live, these others being the American citizens now in Shanghai.

"The Augusta incident has a clear and emphatic meaning. The American war vessels should complete the evacuation of Americans at Shanghai, including the Marines, and then should leave the vicinity at once.

"Certainly there are no American interests in China, except the lives of American citizens, that will justify exposing American soldiers and sailors for one unnecessary moment to the dangers so vividly and tragically evident."

"That the United States should go to war because Japan has attacked China would seem to be one of the most unreasonable things imaginable," says the Chicago, Ill., Tribune. "Now we are in a worse position. Our civilians, our troops and our fleet are in the midst of heavy bombardment. The military force is too small to fight, and too large to be sacrificed. The American position is almost intolerable.

"Uncle Sam is caught in the middle of a fight that is none of his business. He can't stay in and he can't get out."

General Pershing's Address

Asserting that many, if not all, the difficulties causing war during the past century might have been settled without resort to arms had the nations involved been so disposed, General John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States, told the assemblage at the memorial day dedication of the Romagne Chapel in France that the time has not arrived when preparation against war by our country may be ignored.

"And still," the General said, "there is increasing ground for hope that in the solution of differences in the future among nations of this continent, reason may prevail against passion and that the very frightfulness of modern war may serve to convince leaders that there is a better way."

The text of General Pershing's address follows:

"Distinguished guests, Veterans of the World War and friends:

"It is gratifying to see here today such a numerous gathering of fellow-Americans.

"It is especially pleasing to have the distinguished representatives of the Civil Government of France and Ecclesiastical bodies unite with us in these ceremonies.

"I am personally touched to meet on this former battle field so many old comrades in arms of the glorious Armies of France. Your presence bears witness that the passage of years has strengthened the ties of friendship so firmly welded when American and French soldiers fought shoulder to shoulder through those terrible years of war.

"We gather here on this memorial morning not only to pay our annual tribute to those of our countrymen of the World War who sleep on the green hill-sides of lovely France, but we meet also to dedicate this beautiful chapel to their memory. At this moment our thoughts go out in grateful remembrance to even greater numbers of our own veterans who lie in the quiet country churchyards of the homeland, as well as to the thousands of our gallant French comrades who gave their lives in the same sacred cause of liberty and justice.

"In the fullness of youth, our heroic dead were the very flower of young American manhood. Proud of their country and its traditions they knew no fear but had faith in the righteousness of their cause. Theirs was the triumph of principle. They won immortal glory on these fields as they nobly served the nation in serving mankind.

"Nineteen years ago, when the first memorial service was held here, the clash of arms had scarcely died away and the countryside was still strewn with the carnage of battle. As we meet again today the traces of conflict have given place to the peace of restful hills and valleys where people come and go almost in forgetfulness of these troublous times.

"As we stand today among these white crosses, we can but believe that if the millions of World War dead could speak again, both friend and foe with one accord would cry aloud for peace. And as our prayers ascend for them, our hearts are filled with the hope that the blessings of that peace for which they fought and for which they continue silently to plead may one day replace the tragedy of war.

"In very truth, many, if not all the difficulties causing war during the past century, might have been settled without resort to arms had the nations involved at the outset been so disposed. Yet, in the face of present world conditions as the race in armament continues, the time has not arrived when preparation against war by our country may be ignored. And still, there is increasing ground for hope that in the solution of differences in the future among the nations of this continent, reason may prevail against passion and that the very frightfulness of modern war may serve to convince leaders that there is a better way. Every postponement of the evil is that much gained for the cause of peace.

"As these little children of France tenderly strew their flowers of affection and gratitude over the graves of our beloved comrades, our hearts will be touched as each of us prays that the scourge of war may not come to them nor to others of their generation in other lands.

"And now in this holy hour, among our sympathetic friends assembled here in fellowship under the flags of France and America, I solemnly dedicate this beautiful chapel as a temple of peace erected to the glory of God in grateful remembrance of our heroic dead. May the divine blessing of our heavenly Father rest upon this sacred spot forever and ever."

Vetoes Relief Bill

President Roosevelt on Aug. 20 vetoed HR 4156, an act for the relief of George R. Brown. The bill would authorize the payment to this former second lieutenant of $638.50, in settlement of claims for pay "from the date of his alleged discharge and last receipt of pay, Aug. 9, 1917, to the alleged date of the receipt of notification of his discharge on Jan. 7, 1918."

"The evidence in this case," the President said, "shows that the claimant accepted his discharge from the Army as of Aug. 8, 1917; that he then returned to his home and engaged in private business; and that he performed no duty as an officer of the Army during any portion of the period for which the pending measure would compensate him. I cannot feel that, in the fact of this evidence, I would be justified in approving this bill."

The following officers have reported to the Navy Department for duty in Washington:

Capt. J. B. Earle, Naval Operations.
Comdr. F. G. Richards, Hydrographic Office.

Comdr. A. G. Robinson, Army Industrial College.

Lt. F. B. Eggers, Navy Yard.
Lt. H. Sall, Bureau of Ordnance.

President at Old Ft. Raleigh

Old Ft. Raleigh, Roanoke Island, N. C., was the scene of a magnificent ceremony on Aug. 18, where approximately 50,000 people, including Governor Hoot of North Carolina and many distinguished visitors gathered to commemorate, with the President of the United States, the 350th Anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, the first white child of English parentage born in America.

Upon the arrival of the President at Ft. Raleigh, at 3:30 P. M., he was greeted with a salute of 21 guns. The Fort was jammed with people to welcome him and to hear his speech. The President returned to the Fort again at 7:30 P. M. to view a dramatic presentation of "The Lost Colony."

In addition to the highway patrols and secret service men that attended the President, battery "C," 17th Field Artillery and selected non-commissioned officers of that regiment, were designated as a special guard, while the President was a visitor at Ft. Raleigh. These troops were also charged with the duty of traffic control and interior police at Ft. Raleigh. The neat soldierly appearance of these troops, and the courteous, efficient and highly satisfactory manner in which they performed their duties in maintaining order and keeping the roads and restricted areas free of all traffic, brought forth much favorable comment and expressions of appreciation.

Company 436, Civilian Conservation Corps, stationed at Manteo, Roanoke Island, also by their efficient service, contributed very much to the President's reception. Forty members of this company take part in the pageant "The Lost Colony."

Col. D. D. Tompkins, Cav., Commanding Officer, District "A," Civilian Conservation Corps, Ft. Bragg, N. C., had charge of the Army participation, and was the representative of the Commanding General, Fourth Corps Area, in greeting the President of the United States, upon his arrival.

Army and Navy Schools for Bakers and Cooks Make Food Preparation and Service a Fine Art

Three times a day, year in and year out, some 300,000 personnel on active military and Naval duties in the various armed services set down to meals deliciously prepared and appetizingly served largely by graduates of the Bakers and Cooks Schools operated by the Army and Navy.

While not so widely known nor so well appreciated outside of the service, the contribution of these schools to the well being and high morale of the men in uniform is a most valuable factor in the defense establishment.

The Army's schools for Bakers and Cooks, operated by the Quartermaster Department, graduate about 1,600 students annually. One school is maintained in each corps area and department. The Navy maintains two schools at San Diego, one for officers' messes and one for enlisted men's messes. Together they graduate about 170 men a year. The Coast Guard uses Navy schooled cooks and bakers, while the Marine Corps breaks their own in by stationing them as assistants to cooks already in the service. Men for the Civilian Conservation Corps are being trained in the Army schools.

Not only are the men trained in the preparation of tasty and nourishing food, but new foods and food products are tested and new methods of making foods appetizing are worked out.

The Army's Schools

In the Army the first School for Bakers and Cooks was established upon recommendation of the Commissary General of Subsistence in 1905, at Ft. Riley, Kansas. "The home of Mounted Service Schools." Sufficient credit cannot be given to these pioneers, who established this type of school.

The Department of Baking was first established on February 15, 1905. Its main purpose was to supply trained bakers for regimental, post and field bakeries. The Army requires good bread and developed the "Field Bread" for use in the field. It is the type of bread that due to the thick crust, will keep fresh for two weeks.

Personnel from all organizations contributed to a great extent in developing School at Ft. Riley, and some of the outstanding personalities that developed were:

Capt. M. S. Murray, Sub. Dept., organized and succeeded by, Capt. L. R. Holbrook, (Now Maj. Gen., USA), developed field equipment.

Capt. L. L. Dietrick, (Now Colonel, Ret'd) Organized and extended use of Schools and Bakery Companies during the late war.

Col. S. G. Jones, Cav., An expert on requirements and organization.

Major Baker, OQMG, October 1920, contributed to reorganization of expanded schools and bakery companies.

Capt. Frank Morell, (Now Major Ret'd) for reconstruction work after the late war to establish standards on a pre-war basis.

Post Commissary Sgt. Patrick Dunne, assisted Capt. L. R. Holbrook (Now Major General, USA), in developing the most compact, durable, adaptable field equipment.

The present B & C Schools are organized into two departments: Department of Baking and Cooking; operating throughout the year for progressive instruction and thorough training. Vacancies at these schools are limited to the number of authorized instructors and available facilities and cover the following subjects:

Mess Sergeants Course (1 month)

Students attending the one month's course must be graduates of Cooks course in B & C School, if not, student undergoes the cooks course and must graduate as first cook to qualify for the additional month's instruction.

Men who are graduates and return to the school for post graduate study are required to complete all four monthly examination specified for cooks by extracting essential data from the Training Manual "The Army Cook." This merely keeps the student abreast with what is being taught at the Schools from time to time to the student cooks, who may serve under them.

The student is placed on duty in the mess under an instructor and required to demonstrate his ability to manage a mess in all details. He prepares bills of fare, orders all supplies, inspects and checks receipt of supplies. Student will carefully supervise the cooking of food by students, maintain sanitation of kitchen, refrigerator, storerooms, and keep mess records.

Tuesday and Thursday afternoons are allotted to lectures devoted primarily to mess management in garrison and field. Student is graded on theory of mess management in all details, and practical operation of the mess within the ration allowance.

Cooks Course: (4 months divided into four periods)

Student on his first month is designated as (4th class), at the end of each month he is advanced to the next class. Students are divided into two shifts, each shift in each mess has four students: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, thereby developing a chain of responsibility and duty for each student. Shifts change at noon, shift off duty in the morning report to classroom, after each conference. Study assignments are made for the following conferences.

Theoretical instruction covers the following subjects in progressive stages:

1st period:

Sanitation, arithmetic, cost of food, care and use of equipment, kitchen management. The Army ration, nutrition, balanced diet, classification of foods and application for base menus, purchase, inspection, receipt, care and storage of food. Meats—beef, its money value and importance, beef cutting, lamb, pork, veal. Review, examination.

2nd period:

Meat products, fish, poultry, eggs, dairy products, cereals, breakfast foods, alimentary pastes, flour, leavening agents, condiments, spices, extracts, cocoa, coffee, tea, punches, canned foods, (fruits, dehydrated, dried, fresh) gelatin, vegetables—dehydrated, dried and fresh. Review, examination.

3rd period:

Installations, operation of fireless cookers, recipes, cost, analysis of breakfast dishes, soups, meats, gravies, sauces, fish, sea food, vegetables, dessert, flour products, salads, dressings, menus. Review, examination, followed by a 10 day problem "Monthly Mess Accounts."

Bakers Course (4 months divided into four periods)

Students are designated in the same order as student cooks, advanced each month with corresponding duties and responsibilities, and on final month he performs duty of post baker. His first month is duty in the pastry shop. Theoretical instruction covers the following subjects in progressive stages:

1st period:

Sanitation, recipes, cost of bread, rolls, pies, cake, cookies, heat, control, temperatures, term, Care and use of modern equipment: flour sifter, hopper, tempering tanks, dough mixer, troughs, molding tables, pans, racks, refrigerator, fuels, firing, boilers, steam, hot, ovens. Review, examination.

4th period:

Ovens, description, classification, care, use, firing. Field bakeries, equipment, accessories, fuel, camp site, transportation, layout, production. Bakery companies, organization, duties. Review, examination. A practical knowledge of baking, cooking, and mess management can only be acquired by constant study and practice. There are no short cuts. The examination papers for each group of subjects are designed to be helpful in applying theory to practice.

The Navy's School

The Navy's school was inaugurated July 5, 1927 and has been in operation continuously since that time. The primary mission has been to prepare men of the Commissary Branch for higher rating and in particular for the rating of Chief Commissary Steward. The course of instruction is sixteen weeks and the quota for each class is twenty men of Baker and Ship's Cook ratings. Six weeks of the course is spent in practical work and the remaining ten weeks is spent in the classroom. During one week of the classroom instruction the men are taken to various food establishments in San Diego, such as Packing Houses, Canneries and Flour Mills, where it is possible for the men to gain knowledge of the raw materials and foods which they use in the preparation of meals on board ship.

The school is concerned with various tests and experimentation on food preparation. Several recipes have been developed on items that were not considered popular, but under special preparation seemed to gain favor, viz: Liver: developed into a country sausage liver cake; Chipped Beef: made with brown sauce, instead of cream sauce, etc.

At the present time the following are the instructors in the school:

Lt. Comdr. E. H. Duane, (SC), USN, School Director.

Chief Pay Clerk T. A. McDairmant, USN, Assistant Director.

E. E. Burnette, CCStd, USN, Classroom Instructor.

C. M. Wildman, CCStd, USN, Practical Instructor.

The Navy also operates at San Diego the Officers' Stewards and Cooks' School which was inaugurated August 10, 1932 and has been in operation continuously since that time. The primary mission has been to prepare men of the Messman Branch for higher rating and in particular for the ratings of Officers' Steward and Officers' Cook. The course of instruction is sixteen weeks and the quota for each class is thirty men of Messman Ratings. Twelve weeks of the course is spent in the classroom. During one week of the classroom instruction the men are taken to various food establishments in San Diego, such as Packing Houses, Canneries and Flour Mills, where it is possible for the men to gain knowledge of the raw materials and foods which they use in the preparation of meals on board ship.

The school is concerned with various tests and experimentation of food preparation, especially for Officers' Messes. Since the Chief Petty Officers' Mess on this station is subsisted from the general mess and is approximately the same size as the Officers' Messes aboard ship, the students prepare all food for this mess during their practical work using the menu of the General Mess. Recipes have been developed in much the same manner as in the Cooks and Bakers School.

At the present time the following are the instructors in the school:

Lt. Comdr. E. H. Duane, (SC), USN, School Director. Chief Pay Clerk T. A. McDairmant, USN, Assistant Director. W. Powell, CCStd, USN, Classroom Instructor. C. M. Wildman, CCStd, USN, Practical Instructor.

Graduates of the Cooks and Bakers School of the Navy during the past year include the following:

Graduated Nov. 13, 1936—Max A. Brush, SC1c; Gerald E. Dobbyn, Bkr2c; Alton E. Elliott, SC1c; "A" "T" Hensley, SC1c; Edward T. Jiranek, Bkr2c; Leo Johnson, Bkr1c; Herbert J. Leach, Bkr1c; Edwin G. General Embick Visits Berlin

Maj. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, Deputy Chief of Staff of the United States Army, and Mrs. Embick arrived in Berlin on Sunday, August 1 for a short visit to their daughter, Mrs. Albert C. Wedemeyer, whose husband, Capt. Albert C. Wedemeyer, U. S. Inf., is a student at the German War Academy, and on Thursday, Aug. 5, accompanied by Capt. and Mrs. Wedemeyer, they left for a short motor trip through South Germany.

On Monday evening General Embick, accompanied by Maj. Truman Smith, the American Military Attache, was officially received by the Chiefs of the General Staff of the Army and Air Force and by General Fritsch, Commander in Chief of the German Army.

At twelve noon, accompanied by Maj. General Seifert, Commandant of Berlin, with appropriate military ceremonies, General Embick laid a wreath on the tomb of the German unknown soldier.

On Monday evening General Embick was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the home of Gen. Oberst Fritsch, Commanding General of the German Army. At this dinner opportunity was given General Embick to meet a large number of the higher officers of the Army including General of Infantry von Rundstedt, Commander of the 3rd Army Group, Lt. Gen. Schwedler, Chief of the Personnel Office, Col. v. Tipelskirch, Chief of the Section of the War Ministry dealing with foreign armies and Gen. of Art. Beck, Chief of the Great General Staff.

citizenship status, and receive the pay to which otherwise legally entitled.

"Organization commanders will require each enlisted man to whom this law applies to agree in writing to obtain citizenship by expeditious completion of naturalization proceedings. All such agreements will be completed within thirty days following receipt of these instructions and if soldier does not agree to obtain citizenship he will be required to sign a statement to that effect. Originals of agreements or statements will be filed with service records. Similar agreements will be obtained by enlisting officers in the cases of those men discharged since July 1, 1937 whose reenlistment is authorized by this law. Should any such discharged man decline to sign such agreement the fact will be made of record and reported to this office. Enlisted men concerned will be afforded every opportunity to complete naturalization papers and it will be the duty of each organization commander to keep records of all such cases, to render every assistance to these men in securing their naturalization papers and to see that the necessary action is taken to finally obtain citizenship. The date on which the man submits his declaration of intention or petition for citizenship will be noted in the service record under remarks administrative. No enlisted man will be sent to foreign service when such action will prevent completion of naturalization. Original enlistments in the Regular Army of men who are not citizens of United States are not authorized. Advise all concerned including exempted stations. Acknowledge."

Army Construction Bill Signed

The Army Housing bill was signed by President Roosevelt shortly before leaving for Hyde Park, Thursday evening. The measure, the items of which were published in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL at the time of passage, carries authorization for a total of $25,587,456 for construction at Army posts.

It also authorizes the Air Corps Technical School at Chanute Field, Ill., to establish a branch in or near Denver, Colo.

First Army CPX

Ft. Devens, Mass.—Regular and National Guard Officers assembled here from three corps areas for the First Army Command Post Exercise found themselves on Aug. 28 thrown into the full swing of the paper maneuver based upon a mythical invasion of New England. Commanders and staffs who have been arriving by increments all during the past week have now settled down to the routine of "war" under the supervision of the umpire corps which has for some time been engaged in war-gaming the play.

Under the direction of Maj. Gen. Fox Conner the opening situation of the paper war found the Black invaders a coalition of Powers—pressing forward from their beach-heads, Mattapoisett, New Bedford and Plymouth; with the hook of Cape Cod and its canal firmly in hostile hands. The 18th Brigade and the Coastal Frontier Force which had attempted to oppose the landings, have been driven back, although reinforced by the 43rd and 26th Divisions, in a succession of delaying actions to a line extending from Fall River to Weymouth, Black, according to G-2 reports, now has a strength of six divisions ashore, four of them in contact with our forces, and two in reserve.

As Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, commanding the First Army, took over his functions he found the I and III Corps and Army troops concentrating in areas generally west of Boston, while the I Corps continued its delaying action. Transports containing hostile reinforcements were expected to arrive off the New England coast within forty-eight hours. The 2nd Composite Wing of the GHQ Air Force has concentrated at bases in New York State. The directive given the First Army commander as he took over the theatre of operation was to "destroy the Black Force operating in the New England theatre," which includes the general line East Hampton, L. I.—Connecticut River from its mouth to the Canadian boarder.

Fourth Army Maneuvers

Camp Ripley, Minn.—A most interesting critique closed the phase of the Fourth Army maneuvers conducted in this area.

Maj. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, 7th Corps Area Commander, and Brig. Gen. Robert McC. Beck, Jr., Chief Umpire, emphasized that training was the object of the maneuvers. Because of the important part played by recently developed mechanisms in war, the training of all grades of personnel to keep abreast of modern warfare, is now more essential than ever before. General Ford transmitted to the Corps of Officers a message from Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds, C. O. of 4th Army, urging them to study carefully and incorporate into their thinking the new elements in the art of warfare which were demonstrated at these maneuvers.

In essence the Camp Ripley maneuvers strikingly illustrated the greatly increased mobility brought about by motorizing the infantry-artillery team. That very mobility, by increasing the speed and range of operations, intensifies two major problems of the commanding officer. First he must have more complete information about the theatre of operations and concerning the enemy's movements. Second, his communications with all the units under his command must be so complete that he can instantly transmit orders or make necessary important changes.

The Camp Ripley maneuvers seemed to demonstrate that the extraordinary increase in mobility, which has come with the motorization of the Infantry and Artillery and with the development of fast tanks, has not been balanced by equally effective means for providing information about the enemy's movements, effective as are the new scout cars and aerial observation. Furthermore, the development and use of field radios, field telephone, and motorcycle messenger service has not yet reached an efficiency to furnish a motorized army with the superior communication service which it requires.

General Beck concluded by remarking on the excellent spirit, loyalty and aggressiveness shown by enlisted personnel during the maneuvers and stressing the fundamental that without such a will to fight, all the tactics and mechanized equipment are useless.

Urges Air Base Program

Representative J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, member of the House Military Affairs Committee, announced this week that he plans to urge the War Department to recommend between 75 and 100 million dollars expenditure on an extensive Army Air base program on the West Coast.

Army Navy Country Club

The 4th Annual Swimming Meet was held on July 24 at the Washington, D. C., Army and Navy Club. It was a successful event and much interest was displayed by the contestants and spectators alike. Miss Joyce Helmick and Miss Patricia Hall tied for the Women's Championship. Both were awarded cups. Ted Tansey was the outstanding swimmer among the men and won the Men's Championship cup. The prizes were presented by Mrs. R. E. D. Hoyle.

For 26 Years
THE SYMBOL OF SAVINGS

FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

For more than a quarter-century, the name Chevrolet has meant economical transportation to motor car buyers everywhere. And today, more than ever before, Chevrolet means economy and economy means Chevrolet. Daily experience proves that this car requires less gas—less oil—and less service. That's why Chevrolet owners tell their friends that the Chevrolet trade-mark is a very good sign to follow . . . the symbol of savings . . . and the symbol of superior satisfaction, too!

Navy Postgraduate Schools

The Board that will select the candidates for post graduate instruction in the class to be ordered in 1938 will meet shortly after Nov. 15, to consider the applications of officers desiring such duty. It was announced at the Navy Department this week. The approximate numbers of officers to be selected for the various groups to be given instruction are:

School of the Line	120
Naval Construction	6
Civil Engineering	3
Finance and Supply	20
Law	3

From those officers selected for the School of the Line, selections will also be made at the same time for a second year technical curriculum. The technical curricula, with the approximate number of students to be selected for a second year, are listed below:

Aerology	6
Aeronautical Engineering (Aviators only) ..	7
Applied Communications	20
Marine Engineering (Design)	10
Marine Engineering (Operating)	30
Ordnance Engineering (2 Aviators)	14
Ordnance Engineering (Explosives)	1
Ordnance Engineering (Metallurgy)	1
Radio Engineering (1 Aviator)	6

Postgraduate School catalogs describing work done at the Postgraduate School are being mailed to all large vessels and the division commanders of destroyers and submarines, so that more detailed information will be available to those officers who desire this instruction. A careful study of the objective for each curriculum should be made by all applicants. Particular attention is invited to the following:

The postgraduate course of only one year offers the General Line curriculum which includes considerable gunnery, as distinguished from ordnance.

During the first year the student officers selected for a second year technical curriculum take the General Line curriculum reduced to permit them to follow concurrently the first year work of their specialty.

The second year of the Ordnance Engineering curriculum stresses the subject of mathematics and applied mechanics, with a view to preparing the student officer for ordnance design and the analysis of technical ordnance problems. It includes very little instruction in gunnery.

Officers are eligible for postgraduate instruction as follows:

One year School of the Line—Class of 1931, including two aviators.

School of the Line selected for second year technical curriculum—Classes of 1931 and 1932 (applications from other classes will be considered). Naval Aviators are eligible only for technical curricula as shown in paragraph two of this letter.

Officers not Eligible

The Board will not consider requests from those officers of the Class of 1932 attached to newly constructed ships that have been commissioned less than one year by June 1, 1938, or from those on survey duty or the Aslatie Station whose normal tour of duty expires later than June 1, 1938.

Naval Construction, Civil Engineering, and Finance and Supply—Classes of 1935 and 1936.

Law—Officers who are due for their second tour of shore duty and with special attention given to those who have shown some aptitude for this course.

"Candidates should indicate," it was announced, "whether they desire the School of the Line only, or the School of the Line followed by a technical course as listed. Those who desire to pursue a technical curriculum for a second year should indicate in their requests their first and second choices. Careful consideration should be given the second choice, which choice will indicate a specialty which the candidate is willing to follow.

"Applications with recommendations of commanding officers shall be forwarded in time to reach the Bureau of Navigation prior to November 15, 1937, and none received after that date will be considered. Forwarding seniors shall endorse on applications full and pertinent comment as to the applicant's qualifications.

"Officers applying for the courses Naval Construction, Civil Engineering, and Law will submit with their applications signed agreements not to resign during the course, and to serve three years in the naval service after the completion of their postgraduate course. Upon completion of the School of the Line course, similar agreements will be required of the officers who are selected for further technical postgraduate instruction.

"In order to make certain that the boards will have before them all applications, the Bureau directs that any applicant who may have indicated his preference for postgraduate instruction on his reports of fitness, or by letter, renew his request, inviting attention to such previous requests as he may have submitted.

"The boards will consider only applications submitted through official channels; appended endorsements; and the officers' records.

"The attention of forwarding seniors is invited to the fact that these endorsements should not be perfunctory but should state in full the candidate's carefully considered abilities and prospective potentialities for the type of postgraduate instruction for which he is an applicant. No candidate should be recommended who is not considered to be essentially worthy of instruction, as postgraduate instruction cannot be given to all officers."

actively to seek relief from the promotion difficulties.

When those hearings brought the subject out into the open, Representative Vinson, chairman of the committee, asked Admiral Andrews to incorporate the thoughts he had expressed into a bill. Accordingly the Bureau drafted a bill which was given to Mr. Vinson for introduction. However, even then, there were further conferences between Navy representatives and Mr. Vinson before the measure was whipped into a form which appeared to be a compromise.

That this bill embodies all that the Department desires, or that it will quiet those who seek improvement, does not seem entirely probable, hence the belief that further modifications may be expected.

Some evidence of the feeling in Congress on the selection system in force is evidenced by the following colloquy which occurred on the floor of the House, Aug. 20, when the Coast Guard promotion bill was called up:

Mr. Taber. As I understand it, the effect of this bill is to create a selection board amongst the officers of the Coast Guard.

Mr. Bland. It is not strictly a selection board. It is rather an elimination board. It is entirely different from the Navy selection board. It does determine those who should be taken out of the line of promotion, but the maximum would be five officers a year.

Mr. Taber. That would be 25 per cent of those who are taken into the officer personnel, or something like that.

Mr. Bland. May I say to the gentleman that selection is in every service, including the enlisted men. The commissioned officers of the Coast Guard are the only men who are not subjected to these tests. They are given every right and they may appear by counsel before this board before they are permanently retired.

Mr. Taber. The operation of this system in the Navy and the Army has cost us a lot of money.

Mr. Bland. This is entirely different from the system in the Army or the Navy and every safeguard is thrown around these men. Mr. Taber. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill may be passed over without prejudice.

Mr. Bland. I object, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Taber. Then, Mr. Speaker, I object to the present consideration of the bill.

Naval Civilian Training Law Asked of Congress

President Roosevelt's proposal for the establishment of a civilian training organization in the Navy similar to the Civilian Military Training Corps in the Army was whipped into legislative form and sent to Congress by the Navy Department in the closing hours of the session just adjourned.

In transmitting the draft of the proposed bill Rear Adm. A. R. Cook, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, as Acting Secretary of the Navy, told Congress that the Department plans, if the bill be enacted in time, to enroll 2,500 young men for 45 days training in July and August of 1939. The total cost would be about $289,000 the first year.

Acting Secretary Cook's letter of transmittal follows:

"The purpose of this bill is to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to provide naval training both ashore and afloat for such civilians as may be selected for such training upon their own application.

"This proposed legislation would parallel for the Navy the Civilian Military Training Camps conducted by the Army under authority of the Act of June 3, 1916, as amended, and the Act of March 4, 1923, as amended.

"The civilians who would receive naval training under the provisions of the proposed legislation would not become members of the Navy. They would assume no obligation for federal service beyond the period of training. They would receive no pay while performing this training duty but would be furnished transportation to and from their places of training with subsistence, clothing, bedding and shelter during the training periods.

"Training under the proposed legislation would be confined largely to young men of high school age and college students. Their training would be conducted during the months of July and August. It is planned that each summer's training period would consume 45 days.

"The college students would be enrolled from the sophomores of selected colleges and given 45 days of intensive training and instruction ashore as embryo officers. The following summer they would be enrolled for a second period of training afloat with a view to qualifying, with the help of correspondence courses in professional subjects, for commissions in the Naval Reserve.

"The high school students, not being sufficiently advanced for officer training would be given practically the same instruction and training as is given recruits of the regular Navy. During the following summer a selected portion of these young men would be given an additional 45 days of training duty. A third period would later be given to a selected few as appeared particularly desirable. They would be encouraged to enlist in the Naval Reserve for further training.

"In the event of enactment of this proposed legislation it is planned to enroll 2,500 young men, 500 of whom would be college sophomores, during the fiscal year 1939. The cost of this first year of training would be approximately $90,425 for the 500 college sophomores, and $190,000 for the 2,000 young men of high school age, the average cost of the latter being approximately $90 per man. This figure includes certain items of cost which would not be recurring and succeeding years so that the ultimate average cost would be approximately $80 per man.

"The Navy Department recommends that the proposed legislation be enacted."

"Perhaps the day may come—I would speed it all I could—when nations will employ no armed forces. Until such a day does come we shall find our assurance in our Navy of first rank."—WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING.

ALTHOUGH JAPAN IS ENGAGED IN hostilities with Chinese Regulars within the borders of China, and the casualties resulting are mounting by thousands, and great cities are being destroyed, the Nanking and Tokyo Governments and the Western Powers are refusing to regard the situation as that of official war. Both China and Japan are signatories of the Kellogg Pact whereby they renounced war as an instrument of policy. Neither, therefore, desires to declare war. Besides the moral aspect of this attitude on the part of each contestant, the practical advantage of refraining from declaring war is that trade can be maintained even in munitions. China is receiving such goods not only by way of the sea but from Russia through Mongolia. In order to limit China's receipt of war supplies, Japan has instituted a blockade against Chinese shipping, which reaches from a point just above Shanghai south to near Canton. This step is known in international law as a pacific blockade. Numerous instances of the use of such a form of coercion have occurred during the past century, with the result that it has become accepted and defined as a kind of reprisal or constraint without a declaration of war. While seizures are confined to the shipping of the state undergoing blockade, practice has permitted visits of neutrals by members of the blockading force to obtain proof of identity. Thus the action taken by Japan in this particular cannot be construed as war and does not, therefore, justify the President in declaring the existence of that state of affairs. However, not only the land operations of the Japanese Army but the activities of the Rising Sun Fleet, necessarily are provoking incidents which are seriously affecting the rights and privileges of neutrals, and causing the loss of life and property for which in many cases there is no redress because of the difficulty of establishing responsibility. The casualties aboard our cruiser Augusta fall within this category. Not only the Augusta but other United States warships have been fired on, American Nationals have been killed, and American property has been gutted. The British Ambassador was gravely wounded by a Japanese airplane, British lives and property have been destroyed, and the British warships and merchantmen have been endangered. France and Italy have undergone similar experiences. Yet there continues a distinct unwillingness on the part of the western powers to do more than make protests and submit the foundation for claims for damages. Their restraint is justified in view of the uncertainty that Japan would resent interference to the point of war. Moreover, it is altogether likely that in a few days Japanese troops will press into the interior beyond Shanghai, and with that city freed from the bombs and bullets which have been shattering it, foreign interest while acute will be inclined to take the same view of the Yangtze fighting as they have of that in the north. In such case, probably the Washington government will continue to refuse to apply the "Peace Act of 1937," as the embarrassing neutrality law is euphemistically known.

THE INJUSTICES WHICH would have been wrought by the ill-considered amendment on the Army Appropriation Act barring the reenlistment of non-citizens have been avoided by prompt remedial action on the part of Congress. The seemingly wise item was put into the appropriation bill without discussion as to the harm it would do to the many men whose years of service have shown them to be American in spirit if not legally. Some seven thousand men who were not legal citizens were already in the Army. A large number of these had served many enlistments and some were close to retirement. Some had fought in France. Through a misunderstanding the conception was general that their years of service in the armed force made them American citizens. That this belief was false and that they must complete their naturalization proceedings did not merit refusing them reenlistment and revoking the equity they had earned in an army career and prospective retirement. The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL was prompt and emphatic in calling attention to the plight of these men. Specific instances of injustices were cited. That remedial legislation was enacted giving these men the opportunity to complete their citizenship requirements and remain in their chosen careers, is a source of gratification and pride.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO emphasize too greatly the importance of gastronomy in the maintenance of a fit and efficient military or naval force. The fighting man may lack shelter, his clothes may be in rags and his position may be precarious, but a warm, tasty and filling meal gives him a mental and physical outlook hard to conquer. In peace, as well as war, the man is largely what he eats and a force dissatisfied with its mess is pretty likely to be dissatisfied with everything else. The progress made in messing the Army and Navy of the United States has been one of the great factors in the maintenance of high morale. Congress has shown a willingness to provide a balanced and adequate ration, superior to that of any other nation, but this alone would be wasted if it were not for the skillfulness and efficiency of the cooks and bakers who prepare and serve it to the men. The care and thought given by the Army and Navy to the conduct of their schools for bakers and cooks is reflected in the high type of men selected for the courses and the practical training given them before returning them to their home stations. Every soldier and sailor benefits from the constant testing and experimentation conducted in these schools looking toward better menus, improved recipes, and the acceptance of new food products. Certainly their efforts have done much to make mess call one of the happiest symbols in the services.

"I didn't know my second-grade teacher liked me so well, Mummy," he confided. "I heard her talking to some of the other teachers, and she must be awfully fond of me! Do you know what she said?"

"Oh, I'm sorry," he apologized. "I thought you said slaughtered."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

The Far Eastern Situation—The shooting of the British Ambassador to China has somewhat overshadowed the strictly military phase in press dispatches reaching this country from the areas covered by the unofficial Sino-Japanese war. However, in the northern phase there are unconfirmed reports that the Japanese have entered Kalgan in a wide turning movement from Dolonner. If these reports be true, the Chinese troops, comprising about six divisions, along the railroad west of Kalgan have been pinched out. In this northern phase the Japanese, with about 100,000 troops opposing 300,000 Chinese, have been operating south of the Yung-Ting river from Taku to Tientsin, Fengtai and Nankow. The main effort appears to be through Nankow to Kalgan and Inner Mongolia. Apparently the past week has seen little change in this situation, the Japanese having been slowed down considerably by bad weather.

In the Shanghai area, the Japanese under cover of 82 warships on Aug. 23, landed a force west and east of the mouth of the Whangpoo and at several points on Hangchow bay south of Shanghai. They now have established an advanced air base on the Sung Ming. In the Shanghai area the Chinese have approximately 125,000 troops while the Japanese have three divisions totaling between 50,000 and 60,000, but whether all of these have been landed or not is not known. Coming south in three columns from Liuhio and Lotien the Japanese already have begun to relieve the pressure of the Chinese forces on Hongkew and Yangtzepoo. The action has been hindered somewhat by the bad terrain which is mostly mud flats traversed by canals. The importance placed on the Shanghai operations by the Japanese is evidenced by their placing in command General Matsui who formerly commanded the Taiwan (or Shantung) force.

Restriction of Post Exchanges—Specific instructions to post commanders governing the operation of post exchanges, in view of new legislation restricting their activities, is now being formulated by some of the Corps Area commanders. In many of the Corps Areas, however, the commanding generals are busily engaged at this time with field maneuvers and command post exercises and the drafting of detailed instructions will await their return to their desks.

The general policy of the War Department was laid down to Corps Area and Department Commanders in a letter sent out within the past few days based on the provision in the War Department appropriation act limiting their sale to "articles of small personal needs not similar to those furnished by the government." Based on this policy, which was set forth in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of Aug. 14, Corps Area commanders will make detailed interpretations for the posts under their jurisdiction.

New Naval Ordnance Chief—Rear Adm. William R. Furlong, USN, on Aug. 27 took the oath of office as Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance of the United States Navy. Admiral Furlong has relieved Rear Adm. Harold R. Stark, USN, who has served as Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance since November 2, 1934. Admiral Stark will take over command of Cruiser Division 3, Battle Force, with the USS Concord as his flagship.

Admiral Furlong's last tour of duty was as Operations Officer on the staff of the commander in chief of the United States Fleet. He was born in Allenport, Pennsylvania on May 26, 1881, and was appointed to the Naval Academy from Pennsylvania in 1901.

After graduation, he served for five years in the armored cruiser, USS Maryland, which made a cruise to the Orient through the Suez Canal and which operated in far eastern waters, and in the southern and western Pacific. For two years he was in command of the USS Chicago, in reserve commission at Boston, Massachusetts. He attended the postgraduate course in marine engineering at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, in 1912, and the following year was under instruction at the Radio School, New York Navy Yard and at Columbia University. In 1914, he was fleet radio officer and aide on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, and in 1916 was ordered to the USS South Carolina as gunnery officer. He was transferred to the USS Nevada as gunnery officer in 1917, and, after a short period of duty in the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, joined the USS New York operating in the war zone with the British Grand Fleet. Later he went to France for duty in connection with the United States Naval Railway Battery. Upon his return to the United States in October 1918, he was assigned to the Bureau of Ordnance in charge of the Fire Control Section, and was awarded a special letter of commendation by the Navy Department for that service.

In 1919, he was a member of the Board convened for the revision of fire control instructions. In 1921, he was fleet gunnery officer on the staff of the Commander, Battle Force, and in 1923 he was ordered to duty in the Office of Naval Operations, Navy Department. He served in that office until 1926 when he was ordered to the USS West Virginia as executive officer.

In June 1927, he assumed command of the USS Neches, and in August 1927 was ordered to command Destroyer Division 36, Battle Force. Automatic Landings of Big Army Plane Accomplished by use of New Device Perfected at Wright Field—The Army Air Corps has just completed a series of history-making experimental flights at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, in which a large army cargo plane was landed several times under full automatic control. Utilizing a new device, perfected after two years of intensive research by Air Corps Engineers, the plane was repeatedly landed under adverse wind conditions without any human assistance of any kind. The perfection of this device makes it possible to land a plane in a dense fog, in absolute darkness or under other adverse conditions. This development opens up a wide field of speculation as to the future of military and commercial planes guided and controlled by automatic devices.

The results of the Wright Field experiments are certain to attract wide attention from all persons interested in the safe navigation of the air and mark a notable extension of the field of automatic control of airplanes.

The automatic landings of the big cargo airplanes were made with amazing accuracy.

Unlike other so-called automatic landing systems in which the pilot of the airplane or ground personnel actually through remote control directs the landing of the airplane, the Air Corps craft is landed without assistance from the human pilot of the airplane and also without remote control from the ground.

Air Corps officials stated that the closest other approach to fully automatic landing of which they have knowledge is a system being used experimentally by a civil agency on the West Coast, in which the pilot must constantly make adjustments during the landing procedure. Another method is that used in the British "Queen Bee" experiments in which the airplane is remotely controlled in flight and landed by an observer either on the ground or in an accompanying airplane, who must be able to see the airplane which is under radio control.

Air Corps official said that their experiments and research have been conducted in order to arrive at fully automatic landing that removes the human element from the procedure of landing through fog and other adverse weather conditions which prevent visual contact from the airplane to the ground or from the ground to the airplane.

Aboard the big cargo airplane during the successful automatic landing tests were Capt. Carl J. Crane, Capt. George V. Hollman, and Mr. Raymond Stout, all of whom were, during the automatic flights and landings, nothing more than interested passengers, since no human hand touched a control once the automatic features were placed into operation. With the Sperry gyro pilot flying the airplane headed in a southerly direction, the master automatic landing switch was closed over Dayton and from that instant until the final roll of the airplane headed north on the runway at Patterson Field not one control was touched by the airmen aboard the airplane. With the exception of the Sperry gyro pilot, all of the electro-mechanic elements of the automatic landing system were designed by personnel of the Materiel Division at Wright Field.

The automatic landing system as used in the tests at Wright Field Monday shows promise of eliminating the possibility of human error in aircraft landings under conditions of poor weather. The Air Corps expects to conduct further experiments with the automatic system of landing to the end that additional refinements will make automatic landing an everyday occurrence in good weather as well as in bad.

Degrees to West Pointers—Carrying out of the new law granting bachelor of science degrees to all living graduates of service academies under such regulations as the Secretaries may prescribe has been turned over to the Superintendent of the Military Academy by the Secretary of War. It is understood that the Academic Board there is now engaged in searching the records and devising a suitable certificate which will be mailed to all graduates whose addresses are on record.

Chief Clerk Fourth Corps Area Retires—Warrant Officer Meyer Silverman U. S. Army, will retire from active duty with the Army after over 36 years of service on December 31, 1937. He is being relieved from his present assignment and duty as Chief Clerk of the Headquarters Fourth Corps Area, effective August 31, 1937, and will proceed to his home Providence, Rhode Island, to await retirement.

Warrant Officer Silverman has had a long and honorable career in the Army. The majority of his service has been in the Coast Artillery Corps. He is a graduate of the Coast Artillery Engineer School.

He was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant Coast Artillery Corps, National Army, November 28, 1917. He transferred to the Infantry and was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant, Infantry, June 1918. He was discharged as 1st Lieutenant, Infantry in March 1919 and reenlisted as Master Sergeant Coast Artillery Corps until his appointment as Warrant Officer, U. S. Army, July 1, 1920.

Warrant Officer Silverman is a Major, Infantry, Organized Reserve Corps. He has been very active in all Reserve activities in this Corps Area in the last 13 years.

Navy Promotions—The following naval officers were promoted to the grades indicated, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, on Aug. 21, 1937, with rank from the dates shown after their names: Capt. John F. Stamm, June 30, 1937, No. 3; Capt. William B. Steiner, June 30, 1937, No. 24; and Chief Quartermaster Clerk Walter J. Czapp, June 30, 1937.

Fall Training Starts—With the arrival at West Point Aug. 26 of the group of old West Point football players, which will complete Head Coach Gar Davidson's group of assistants, first signs of preparation for Army's 1937 football season are evident. Captains Davidson and Moe Daly and Lt. Blondy Saunders, who are stationed there, were joined by Lieutenants Cy Letzelter; Harvey Jablonsky and Paul Burlingame, all of whom will coach the "A" squad; Lieutenants Emmett O'Donnell and Bob Stillman, who with Walter French, Army's baseball and pebe basketball coach, will handle the "B" squad, and Lieutenants Art Meehan, Ken Fields, Jack Malloy and Stanley L. Smith, who will coach the pebe squad.

Several new faces are in this group, as Stillman, who has just returned from a tour of duty in Hawaii; Fields, Smith, last year's brilliant guard and Walter French will be commencing their first year as Army football mentors. Jack Malloy, who has just returned from China, will be there for the second time after a three-year absence.

Army's coaches will start the squad on its way on Sept. 1, coincident with the opening of the academic year. The practice schedule consists of 40 minutes work on Mondays and Fridays, with one and three-quarters hours available on other days.

Midshipmen Return—Aboard three battleships, six destroyers and a gunboat, the midshipmen from the Naval Academy returned to Annapolis on Wednesday, Aug. 25. As the fleet steamed to anchorage at Annapolis Roads, the Academy saluting battery fired a 13-gun salute in honor of Rear Adm. Wilson Brown, commander of the training squadron. The greeting was returned by the New York in the form of a seven-gun salute for Capt. Bryson Bruce, acting superintendent of the Academy.

Approximately 1200 midshipmen were aboard the vessels, members of the sophomore and senior classes of the school. The midshipmen of these classes have spent the summer in European waters, having visited Kiel, Germany, Funchal, Madeira and Tor Bay, England.

Originally scheduled to make port in Greece, the middies itinerary was changed at the last minute because of the unsettled conditions in the Mediterranean area.

DIAMOND JUBILEE

ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL

Founded the last week of August, 1863, the Army and Navy Journal enters this week upon the 75th year of its service to the Services.

No publication in the World has the unique record of the Army and Navy Journal in singleness of purpose and devotion to the need responsible for its creation, during three-quarters of a century of continuous issue.

The one concern of the Army and Navy Journal today is the same as in 1863—the welfare and adequacy of the Armed Forces of the United States, and, therefore, the well-being of the Nation. From the day of its first issue seventy-five years ago, its course has been that charted by its patriotic sponsors—promotion of National Defense and the Public Service.

Faithfulness to the Trust reposed in it has necessitated accurate and full reports of events, temperate and just praise and criticism, determined opposition to harmful developments, and persistent advocacy of needed remedies until their achievement.

It is appropriate that we celebrate this 75th, this Diamond Jubilee, in a manner befitting the Services and the imperishable deeds they have performed. We will do so in the form of a supplement to be issued during the coming year, which, within colored covers and profusely illustrated, will set forth America's history in the atmosphere of its occurrence. It will be a supplement that we intend shall rank the authoritative works of all times. To achieve this ambition, we will need the same whole-hearted cooperation from the Services that they have extended in the past. Advice and suggestions will be welcome so that their publication can put forth an issue that will be a matter of Service pride, and cause the country to realize the heavy debt it is under to the men in uniform.

So, help us fittingly celebrate.

cake for the military personnel throughout the Philippine Islands.

The distinguishing feature of this School which makes it unique in comparison with similar schools in continental United States and our other foreign service stations is our training of prospective Philippine Scout Mess Sergeants and Cooks on how to efficiently and adequately feed Scout Soldiers on the Filipino Ration (approximately 20 cents) as compared to the American Army garrison ration (approximately 44 cents).

Congress' Defense Activities

for the relief of sergeant-instructors for the National Guard was approved. The Department was authorized to give samples of equipment to prospective manufacturers—a measure of great importance for industrial preparedness.

In the Navy an important stride forward was made by the enactment of the authorization bill for a construction program for naval auxiliaries. A new naval air station in San Francisco Bay was authorized. The authorized strength of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps was increased from 1,200 to 2,400. A number of measures for the relief of officers and men who lost personal effects in fires and hurricanes were enacted.

In the Marine Corps, the Staff situation was improved through the passage of legislation designed to remove the discrimination previously existing in selections boards against officers on staff duty.

Some hope for progress in lighter-than-air in the Navy was evidenced when Assistant Secretary Edison showed Congress that he believes in continuing the Navy's function of experimentation and development in that field.

For the Coast Guard, a number of measures were put on the statute books establishing new stations, which, means more duties and responsibilities for that service. A permanent staff of instructors at the Coast Guard Academy was authorized. Officers of the Coast Guard were authorized to purchase ordnance property the same as those of other services. Rank on the retired list was adjusted and the pay of certain officers in the retired list, retired for disability incurred in war, was adjusted.

One near victory of the session was the success in having the restriction against the payment of the reenlistment allowance stricken from the Treasury Post Office bill only to have it slipped back in a deficiency bill at the instance of the administration. There is strong reason to believe that this undesirable legislation will be killed in the next session.

The bill to extend peace time pension benefits to officers and enlisted men of the reserves killed or injured on active duty was enacted.

Bachelor of Science degrees for all former graduates of the service Academies can now be granted under an approved bill.

The Civilian Conservation Corps was extended for three years under a compromised measure.

OBITUARIES

The War Department has been notified of the death of Capt. Felix L. St. Claire, retired warrant officer, on Aug. 16, 1937, at the Station Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Captain Claire was born May 28, 1860, at Warsaw, Poland, and entered the military service Sept. 18, 1900. He was a former field clerk in the Quartermaster Corps. He was appointed a Warrant Officer April 27, 1926, and retired on May 1, 1926, with the rank of captain.

His nearest of kin is a daughter, Mrs.

Josephine Lehman, 531 Carson Street, San Antonio, Tex.

Col. Bruce L. Burch, USA-Ret., died at the Station Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., on Aug. 17, 1937, after a prolonged illness.

Colonel Burch entered the military service as a second lieutenant of Cavalry in 1907 and served in that branch with distinction until his retirement in 1935 for physical disability.

From 1912 to 1916 he was stationed on the Mexican Border and participated in the troop movements into Mexico incident to the pursuit of Pancho Villa. In the latter part of 1916 he was transferred to the Philippine Islands where he assisted in organizing the Philippine Division. During the war he served with the expeditionary forces in Manchuria and Siberia. From 1920 to 1924 he was on duty as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Georgia. In 1931 he was detailed to duty with the General Staff Corps and assigned to

Headquarters, Fourth Corps Area. He was promoted to the grade of colonel in 1935 and was retired shortly thereafter.

Colonel Burch was a graduate of the School of Musketry, the Cavalry School and the Command and General Staff School. He was an active participant in military sports, horsemanship, polo and small arms competitions. In 1907 he was a member of the Army Rifle Team and the Army Pistol Team. A natural student, he possessed high intellectual and artistic attainments. His unfailing kindness and fair consideration of his associates won for him a host of friends through the service.

Colonel Burch was the son of Charles Andrew Burch and Frances Elizabeth Davidson of Mobile, Ala. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Augusta Young Burch and a son Bruce Lamar.

Mrs. Burch's address until Sept. 10, will be 125 Cave Spring Street, Cedar-town, Ga. Thereafter it will be 444 Elm-hurst Street, San Antonio, Tex., where she will make her future home.

for the relief of sergeant-instructors for the National Guard was approved. The Department was authorized to give samples of equipment to prospective manufacturers—a measure of great importance for industrial preparedness.

In the Navy an important stride forward was made by the enactment of the authorization bill for a construction program for naval auxiliaries. A new naval air station in San Francisco Bay was authorized. The authorized strength of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps was increased from 1,200 to 2,400. A number of measures for the relief of officers and men who lost personal effects in fires and hurricanes were enacted.

In the Marine Corps, the Staff situation was improved through the passage of legislation designed to remove the discrimination previously existing in selections boards against officers on staff duty.

Some hope for progress in lighter-than-air in the Navy was evidenced when Assistant Secretary Edison showed Congress that he believes in continuing the Navy's function of experimentation and development in that field.

For the Coast Guard, a number of measures were put on the statute books establishing new stations, which, means more duties and responsibilities for that service. A permanent staff of instructors at the Coast Guard Academy was authorized. Officers of the Coast Guard were authorized to purchase ordnance property the same as those of other services. Rank on the retired list was adjusted and the pay of certain officers in the retired list, retired for disability incurred in war, was adjusted.

One near victory of the session was the success in having the restriction against the payment of the reenlistment allowance stricken from the Treasury-Post Office bill only to have it slipped back in a deficiency bill at the instance of the administration. There is strong reason to believe that this undesirable legislation will be killed in the next session.

The bill to extend peace time pension benefits to officers and enlisted men of the reserves killed or injured on active duty was enacted.

Bachelor of Science degrees for all former graduates of the service Academies can now be granted under an approved bill.

The Civilian Conservation Corps was extended for three years under a compromised measure.

The War Department has been notified of the death of Capt. Felix L. St. Claire, retired warrant officer, on Aug. 16, 1937, at the Station Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Captain Claire was born May 28, 1860, at Warsaw, Poland, and entered the military service Sept. 18, 1900. He was a former field clerk in the Quartermaster Corps. He was appointed a Warrant Officer April 27, 1926, and retired on May 1, 1926, with the rank of captain.

His nearest of kin is a daughter, Mrs.

Josephine Lehman, 531 Carson Street, San Antonio, Tex.

Col. Bruce L. Burch, USA-Ret., died at the Station Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., on Aug. 17, 1937, after a prolonged illness.

Colonel Burch entered the military service as a second lieutenant of Cavalry in 1907 and served in that branch with distinction until his retirement in 1935 for physical disability.

From 1912 to 1916 he was stationed on the Mexican Border and participated in the troop movements into Mexico incident to the pursuit of Pancho Villa. In the latter part of 1916 he was transferred to the Philippine Islands where he assisted in organizing the Philippine Division. During the war he served with the expeditionary forces in Manchuria and Siberia. From 1920 to 1924 he was on duty as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Georgia. In 1931 he was detailed to duty with the General Staff Corps and assigned to

Headquarters, Fourth Corps Area. He was promoted to the grade of colonel in 1935 and was retired shortly thereafter.

Colonel Burch was a graduate of the School of Musketry, the Cavalry School and the Command and General Staff School. He was an active participant in military sports, horsemanship, polo and small arms competitions. In 1907 he was a member of the Army Rifle Team and the Army Pistol Team. A natural student, he possessed high intellectual and artistic attainments. His unfailing kindness and fair consideration of his associates won for him a host of friends through the service.

Colonel Burch was the son of Charles Andrew Burch and Frances Elizabeth Davidson of Mobile, Ala. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Augusta Young Burch and a son Bruce Lamar.

Mrs. Burch's address until Sept. 10, will be 125 Cave Spring Street, Cedar-town, Ga. Thereafter it will be 444 Elm-hurst Street, San Antonio, Tex., where she will make her future home.

MERCHANT MARINE

World Sea Tonnage

The newly issued Lloyds Register Book for 1937-38 reveals that there has been an increase of 1,458,114 tons in the amount of motor tonnage of sea-going vessels in the world, and a decrease in the tonnage of sailing vessels and non-propelled craft of 44,174 tons, making a net increase of 1,222,381 tons in the total tonnage of the world. Between June, 1936, and June, 1937, there was a net increase of 177,671 tons.

The tonnages in June, 1937, as compared with June, 1936, are: Great Britain and Ireland, 1936, 17,285,459; 1937, 17,543,941. All other countries, 1936, 47,778,184; 1937, 48,742,083.

The countries showing notable increases for the last twelve months are: Norway (293,127 tons); Japan (259,420 tons); Great Britain and Ireland (258,482 tons); Germany (218,824 tons); Holland (123,040 tons); Italy (114,475 tons); China (108,406 tons); Panama (83,008 tons); Finland (67,662 tons); and Greece (54,585 tons). Owing to the difficulty experienced in the case of Soviet Russia, the figures given for that country are not comprehensive.

The largest decreases among the principal maritime countries are the following: France (132,206 tons); Spain (102,655 tons); and the United States of America, sea tonnage, (100,275 tons).

Of the tonnage owned in Great Britain and Ireland, 14.5 per cent is less than five years old. Of the principal maritime countries abroad those having the largest proportion of new tonnage (less than five years old), are Japan, 18.3 per cent, Norway with 17.9 per cent, Australia and New Zealand together, with 17.6 per cent, Denmark with 13.0 per cent, Germany with 12.7 per cent, Holland with 12.3 per cent, and France with 11.0 per cent. On the other hand, Sweden has but 8.1 per cent, and Spain but 4.3 per cent.

Wins Contest Prize

Shipmates of Aviation Cadet William R. Staggs on the USS Ranger are congratulating that fortunate pilot who was this week announced as winner of the $100,000 prize in the Old Gold puzzle contest. Cadet Staggs is the son of Lt. Col. R. L. Staggs of the 108th Combat Engineers, a National Guard unit in Chicago.

Cadet Staggs is a graduate of the Naval Training School at Pensacola, Fla.

In capturing the prize Staggs ran through a series of eliminations. The first elimination contest brought the number of contestants down to 54,000, who had achieved a perfect score in answering the ninety puzzles. About 9,000 solved the next group of puzzles. The finals were settled on the basis of essays written by surviving contestants on the subject of the increased popularity of the cigarette in his or her community as a result of the contest.

THE U. S. COAST GUARD

Rear Adm. Russell R. Waesche was aboard the cutter Bibb when she acted as radio beacon and plane guard for the Pan American Airways Clipper 111, in her flight from Ft. Washington, L. I., to Southampton, England. The Bibb took station midway between the Azores and Bermuda. The Clipper 111 reached Bermuda on Aug. 19, and the Bibb proceeded to Norfolk.

Itasca at Home Station

The cutter Itasca arrived at her station at San Diego on Aug. 12, after having been to sea for 32 days assisting in the Amelia Earhart search.

Carrabasset Decommissioned

The cutter Carrabasset arrived at the Coast Guard Depot on Aug. 20, and is now being decommissioned.

Coast Guard Football

Lt. John Merriman, coach of the Coast Guard eleven, is now making preparations for a busy gridiron season, the practice squadron having brought his squad home to begin an intensive training session.

International Lifeboat Races

Admiral Waesche has been designated as one of the judges of the 11th annual International Lifeboat Races to be held Sept. 11, off Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y. The competing crews will use 26 ft. Monomoy surfboats, supplied by the Coast Guard to assure competition on an equal basis.

The Fleet Auxiliary Reserve, the establishment of which was advocated by Senator Royal S. Copeland in S. 2958, outlined in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, is doubtlessly the outgrowth of the Senate Committee on Commerce's report on the Morro Castle and Mohawk investigations.

The report on these disasters says in part:

"It is the opinion of the committee that the agency best qualified and implemented to train seamen of the merchant marine is the United States Coast Guard. The work of the service entails duty at sea under all conditions of weather, and small-boat work under difficult and trying circumstances, and strict discipline.

"The committee recommends that the Government provide for training in the Coast Guard of applicants for service in the merchant marine and that the requirements for the rating of able seamen, firemen, and cooks in the merchant marine be 1 year of training in a special enlistment for merchant-marine training in the United States Coast Guard, with special training during that period for firemen and cooks. The committee feels that such course of training under Government supervision should be voluntary, but attractive to the applicant by reason of the shorter period of training required to obtain a certificate as able seaman. It is further recommended that all other provisions for obtaining certificates in less than 3 years as able seamen, firemen, or cooks be eliminated, except as proposed in the language accompanying this report concerning certificates for newly licensed officers and as provided by act of Congress approved May 22, 1937, Public Law No. 100.

"It is the belief of the committee that, upon the completion of training in the United States Coast Guard, the applicant should be assisted in obtaining employment in the merchant marine, but should otherwise be a free agent.

"The future of the American merchant marine rests in the organization of the personnel on such a basis that the high type of young men now entering the Navy and the Coast Guard will likewise enter the merchant marine, and that a considerable number remain in that Service throughout their active life. To accomplish this, men must be given sufficient incentives to devote their lives to the merchant marine, and be provided with conditions which will enable them to live normal, stable, and self-respecting lives."

of all this acting led her to a light smoke—Luckies..

"In Hollywood, I found a much greater rush about things than in English studios. The harder work not only meant added strain on my throat, but also caused me to smoke more cigarettes. At this time, my throat learned what a difference there is in a light smoke. I've found that even though I smoke as many Luckies as I wish, my throat remains in top form."

Luckies—A Light Smoke

Easy on your throat—"It's Toasted"

Madeleine Carroll—for whom the sound cameras have spelled fame—should be an excellent judge of a cigarette's effect on the throat. Her choice of Luckies will bear even more weight if you consider this fact . . . the "Toasting" Process takes out certain throat irritants found in all tobacco. You, too, will enjoy the smoothness and the finer taste of Luckies.
